Silent Journey

You're walking down the streets
And no one knows you.
Only strange figures.
They're standing above you.
And you're searching for the underground,
You're searching for salvation.

Silent journey on a walk.
One step for
And one Step back,
Falling down
And standing up,
Again and again and again.

You're walking through the cities
And no one loves you.
The streets are cold and empty,
Silence and darkness around you.
And you're searching for a melody,
You're searching for a light.

Silent journey on a path.
One step for
And one Step back,
Falling down
And standing up,
Move on, move on, move on.

You're walking in a labyrinth
And no one guides you.
Build from steel and concrete.
A desert of cold glass.
And You're searching for the exit,
You're searching for an escape.

Silent journey on a way.
One step for
And one Step back,
Falling down
And standing up,
Go on, go on, go on.

You're walking in a cage
And no one helps you.
It's a cage that is called life,
Only loneliness and pain.
And you're searching for the answers,
You're searching for a reason.

Silent journey in the dark.
One step for
And one Step back,
Falling down
And standing up,
Until the end of time.
